MEMORIAL SERVICES.

Kit Carson Post, G. A. B., Pays Tribute to Dead The membres of Kit Carson Post, No. 2, G. A. R., attended the service at Metropolitan M. E. Church last night, as an organization. Rev. Frank Bristol, D. D., preached a sermon in memorium to the members of the post who have died during the past year. The memorial service is an annual event with the members of this post, as with several others of the G. A. R. posts of the city, and is of a most impressive character.

"Our Fellow Soldiers" was the subject of Dr. Bristol's sermon. The text was taken from one of the epistics of St. Paul and was used by the great Christian orator to designate his fellow workers in the cause of Christ. The words are full of love, tenof Christ. The words are full of love, tenderness and veneration, said Dr. Bristol, and make a grand and splendid history of military commradeship. In the opinion of the speaker the most enduring friendships are those formed in religion or war. No comradeship is closer or more eternal than that among soldiers, nor in any business or profession is there to be found the same self-sacrifice or enduring strength in the fallowhips as those formed in the cause fellowships as those formed in the cause of Christ or upon the battlefields. To the men who left their homes and went forth to do battle for their country the term "Fellow Soldier" has the most tender and heartfelt meaning.

Dr. Bristol told of some of the incidents he had heard in which the love of a soldier for his comrade, closing with an impressive plea that the feeling of love and veneration between those who stood side by side of the field of battle should never cease to we become certain that the human race would have a better character if it were without spirituous liquors. When they hang a man for a heinous crime they should hang the liquor, for that is what is almost always responsible. Liquor is back of all crime. It makes work for the gallows, and few men would get to that extreme except for the liquor curse.

"Liquor is the great and crying evil in our land," continued the minister. "Some statistics say that the cause of temperance is making progress; other statistics show that more liquor per capita is being made and sold than ever before. There is no cause for worry, for it is certain that many men and women have been reformed, and we can only think that this output is consumed by those who refuse to stop drink-ing, but rather drink more, and drink themselves to ruin and death."

Dr. Murray told of the difficulties of proscountered in the south. In one place where he had been assistant pastor he held temperance meetings, and he ran afoul the principal supporter of the church, who was a saloon keeper.

Consecration Services Yesterday at North Caroline Avenue Church-Business Station Saturday.

The close of the eleventh annual conven tion of the Methodist Protestant Christian Endeavor Union occurred last night, when a consecration was held in the North Carolina Avenue M. P. Church, and nearly all the delegates left the city for their homes today. The sermon last evening was delivered by Rev. Dr. F. T. Tagg of Baltimore, and a short address was made by Rev. J. C. Broomfield of Boston. Before the final adjournment Rev. J. S. Leland of Pittsburg, superintendent of the missionary department of the Christian Endeavor work, reported to the convention that during the day the executive committee of the missionary movement had de cided to send two more missionaries into the field. One is to be a man with a sal-ary of $800 and the other a woman with a salary of $500. The field and the persons are to be chosen by the governing board of the church. The convention sermon was preached at 11 o'clock by Rev. Dr. J. F. McCulloch of Greensboro', N. C., who took the story of Esther as the subject of his discourse. Previous to the sermon the delegates visited the Sunday school of the church, and following the morning lesson Rev. Dr. Cowan of Boston made a brief address.

Rally of the Juniors.

A junior rally was held at the edifice in the afternoon from 3 to 4 o'clock, conducted by Rev. J. C. SUNDAY ORATORIOS. Performance Suggested to the Choral Society. Some pertinent statements as to the present situation in the affairs of the Choral Society of the District are made in the annual report of Mr. William Bruce-King, the president of the society, which is printed in the May number of the society's bulletin. The difficulty of has encountered in obtaining a hall of sufficient size to accommodate the organization, yet not too large, is brought out, and various expedients for escaping the heavy expense attached to the use of Convention Hall are suggested. The most satisfactory of these is that relating to Sunday night oratorios.

Mr. King states:
"The theaters are available on Sunday nights, and an orchestra of local players could be secured. Possibly a plan of cooperation might be arranged with the Washington Symphony Orchestra. This would enable the society to continue the presentation of the great sacred works founded on Scripture, such as "The Messiah, 'The Creation,' 'Elijah' and 'St. Paul, or on Christian legend, such as 'Hora No vissima,' 'St. Christopher' or 'St. Elizabeth, or on the liturgy of the Catholic Church such as the 'Requiem' of Verdi and the 'Stabat Mater' of Rossini. The necessary limitation to sacred works would not be serious detriment, since for many years our programs have been over two-thirds of such character. The Handel and Hadyn Society has for years presented such works in Boston on Sunday without offense to strict observers there of the sacredness of the day. In some aspects, indeed, it may be said that Sunday is the most appropriate day for the presentation of music on the same themes which are the subject of oral discourse on the same day in all the churches. Due care would need to be taken that the details surrounding such performances might be of belitting dignity.
"Against this plan may be urged the view

"Against this plan may be urged the view that many would regard it as lessening the proper observance of Sunday. Then, too, a considerable portion of the society's active members would find it hard to be free from church engagements on even three Sundays in the year."

The report expresses the intention of se curing an expression of the views of the members, both active and sustaining, by a canvass through the mails. It concludes by a special tribute to Prof. H. M. Paul, the retiring financial secretary, for his ar-duous labors of the past seven years, re-sulting in the present prosperous condition

She was unharmed by going ashore, and is now lying at a wharf here unloading cargo.
